It's Hammer Time!

When Saturday 30 June – Sunday 8 July 2012
Where Layang Layang Dive Resort, Malaysia (only open from March to August each year)

Layang Layang, known as "Swallows Reef" is an atoll situated in the South China Sea 300km north-west of Kota Kinabalu, the capital of Sabah. The island is man-made and was constructed for the Malaysian Navy and later developed for the only dive resort. It also has a bird sanctuary for several sea-faring migratory birds.

The reef topography is essentially made up of a rich growth of hard corals; some so shallow that they break the sea surface during low tides, but most begin at depths of about 5m right down to the ocean floor (some 2,000m below).

Some of the marine animals observed around the 14 dive sites include hammerheads, black-tip sharks, jacks, barracudas, pygmy devil rays, marbled rays and eagle rays, bump-head parrotfish, lionfish, moray eels, turtles, nudibranches, gobies, ghost pipe fish and the resident manta ray. Spinner and bottlenose dolphins frequently follow the dive boats to each location and divers are sometimes rewarded with snorkeling and diverse fish life and visiting pelagic marine life.

In addition, the Layang Layang resort was designed to look like a Longhouse, the traditional community home of Borneo's tribal people. Each room at comes with its own fridge, TV and private verandah.
